PREFACE.

THE favor with which this compilation has been received, and especially the plan on which it is constructed have afforded the compiler the highest gratification. Although it was impracticable to present the manuscript to the examination of many, the few very intelligent gentlemen of the press and others who gave it their approval and indorsement, have greatly increased the confidence of the compiler and publishers in presenting it to the horsemen and breeders of the country.

Since the numbering of the horses was completed, the pedigrees of about sixty animals have been extended that should have appeared in the first volume; but as the system prohibits their subsequent introduction in the first—except in the Appendix—they will appear in the second volume, as well as all others that may in the mean time lay just claim to the requisite standard of blood.

The unfortunate meagerness of reliable published data on the blood of the trotting-horse has been, in a measure, compensated by the personal labors of the compiler for several months among the horsemen of New York, and the great centers of breeding and training.

By these efforts he has been able to trace out and authenticate many most valuable facts not heretofore known to the public, especially as to the true lineage of many of the progenitors of the present generation of trotters. And, although the field has been but partially explored, the conviction is forced upon his mind that the road stock of Long Island and the eastern counties of New York and New Jersey, as well as a part of Vermont, is far richer in the blood of Messenger, Grey Highlander, Expedition, and other imported and thoroughbred horses than the breeders of this day are aware of. It would be imposlation struck off. The last that is known of his attempt was a call to breeders to send in their pedigrees. These gentlemen, and others that might be enumerated, doubtless assumed the undertaking before they knew the extent of the field, or had any just conception of the years of persistent toil necessary to complete the task.

The rule in all these attempts was, to commence at the wrong end. Instead of taking the turf history of past generations, and laying a good foundation, they commenced at the top to build downward.

At a later day, that distinguished and venerable gentleman, Benjamin Ogle Tayloe, who has been recognized for more than a quarter of a century, over the signature of "Observer," as the highest authority on all topics connected with the blood horse, commenced and prosecuted the work to a considerable extent. Being called abroad, he placed the unfinished manuscript in the hands of the late Wm. T. Porter, Esq. After Mr. Porter's death, he kindly offered the manuscript to me, if I would complete it, and gave me an order for it wherever I could find it.

Mr. Porter's friends assured me the manuscript had been handed over to the late Henry William Herbert, who was then also dead ; but diligent search among the friends and effects of these gentlemen failed to get any trace of the lost manuscript.

I will be permitted to take this occasion to express to Mr. Tayloe my gratitude and thanks, not only for the tender of the lost manuscript, but for the very valuable advice and assistance he has given me in the prosecution of the work.

Like thousands of others, I had waited and hoped for the appearance of an American Stud Book for a long time ; but not till about ten years ago did I seriously contemplate the undertaking myself. With the full knowledge that all who had entered the race had found the course too long or the weights too heavy, and had either bolted or broken down, I proposed to myself to start without any sound of trumpets, and if I failed the world would be none the wiser, and if I succeeded it would be time enough to claim the prize when I crossed the score. Having an abiding faith in the results of labor, unflinching and properly directed, I have devoted much of my time and thoughts for the past ten years to this compilation.

The manner in which I have accomplished the undertaking must be judged of by those who carefully examine it. Writing from memory and jumping at conclusions have been scrupulously avoided. Just as the original published record reads, so, stripped of all superfluous verbiage, the pedigree stands in this volume. My constant aim has been to get at the exact truth and there leave it, without any additional fancies or suppositions. In hundreds of cases different parties have given different pedigrees, and where the weight of authority has seemed to preponderate, that side has been followed ; but where they were of equal credibility, the difference is noted. I feel that the work is liable to criticism upon whatever plan it may be constructed, but from the very plainness, I might say definiteness, of the plan of this work, it is specially liable. This criticism is what we want. By a free exercise of intelligent pens in pointing out errors, we will be able to make many corrections in the second volume.

WHAT IS A THOROUGHBRED ?

This question will appear to many men a superfluity, but as it stands at the very threshold of enlightened inquiry on this subject, and as thousands of men otherwise intelligent —into whose hands this book may come—have but an indefinite idea of the answer to the question, a reply will not be out of place.

Thoroughbreds may be divided into three classes: First. Those that trace to Eastern parentage, without any admixture ; these are the true thoroughbreds.

Second. Those which cannot be traced to Eastern parentage, but, after many good and authentic crosses, are lost in "time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary."

Third. Those which possess a certain and known portion of good blood, sufficient to allow them by usage to be classed with thoroughbreds, and, being so classed, by usage called thoroughbreds. Unfortunately, the usage has not been uniform, and the tendency has been too much to lower the standard, not because the performances or merits of animals justified it, but because it enabled breeders oftentimes to put off their part-bred horses at higher prices—a temptation too strong for very many otherwise most honorable gentlemen to withstand.

The Hon. Allen J. Davie, of North Carolina, an importer and breeder of distinction, is represented to have used the following language, in a letter to P. N. Edgar, about 1830 :

"It takes four crosses of thoroughbred horses to produce a full-bred mare, and six crosses to constitute a thoroughbred." This attempt to create a distinction, that to the popular mind is without a difference, is not peculiar to Mr. Davie, nor to the breeders of horses alone. It is too harsh to say the many attempts to establish this new class of so-called "full breeds" had their origin in sordid motives ;

but, whatever the motive, it was most admirably calculated to deceive the uninformed and unwary.

What quantity of good blood should a horse possess, in order to entitle him to be classified in the above third distinction of thoroughbreds? In answering this question, notwithstanding the exercise of great circumspection and politeness, some gentlemen's toes will be in the way. If it were possible to submit the question to the intelligent breeders and admirers of the thoroughbred horse, as to what portion of good blood an animal should possess in order to entitle him to classification among thoroughbreds, there would not be a vote in the whole land to admit a half or three-quarter bred.

For the next cross—seven-eighths—there would be a few votes, perhaps ten in a thousand. Now, to lumber up a Stud Book with such grades of animals, would not only be derogatory to the noble lineage of the four-mile courser, but would be formally acknowledging that that lineage was comparatively valueless, and the book itself would be but little better than a nuisance. For the fourth cross—fifteen-sixteenths—there would be many votes; and for the fifth —thirty-one thirty-seconds—there would probably be a majority, yet many would be tenacious for more blood. But, at the sixth cross, in which there would be but one part of cold to sixty-three of warm blood, not many would complain. If this estimate of the views of generations of intelligent and observant breeders be correct, the proper point of division is at the fifth or sixth cross. Without any purpose of compromising between these two crosses, but from the firm conviction that, while mares of five crosses often produce winners, horses of the same number seldom or never get them, I have required as a rule five crosses for mares and six for horses, since 1820—with some few exceptional cases—for the twenty years preceding I have been more indulgent, and for animals of the last century the rule has been still less rigidly applied. If a mare of five crosses is bred to a thoroughbred, her produce is an improvement. If a horse of five crosses is bred to fifty thoroughbred mares, there are fifty foals, better than the sire certainly, but worse than their fifty thoroughbred dams. Thus are fifty animals produced with a taint, and a year lost to fifty good mares. The philosophy of breeding appears to fully justify the distinction which is made between the sexes.

THE APPENDIX.

The establishment of a standard of blood requisite for admission to the body of the work imposes the necessity of providing a receptacle for animals below that standard, which will be found in the shape of an appendix, arranged alphabetically without regard to sex. This appendix, as will be seen, is wonderfully voluminous, embracing about thirty-eight hundred named animals, a larger portion of which are made up from the racing tables previous to 1839. Many of these animals are of undoubted blood; but, in the reports from which they are gathered, no attempt is made to give their pedigrees in full, and they have not been found elsewhere in the field gleaned. By reproducing these animals in this accessible and convenient form, a large number of them may be extended by parties interested, and thus secure a place in the second volume, but the great majority will doubtless remain where they are.

FROM WHAT AND HOW THE COMPILATION IS MADE.

In September, 1829, John S. Skinner, Esq., of Baltimore, commenced the publication of "The American Turf Register and Sporting Magazine," and, as its name indicates, it at once became the authority on sporting events, and the medium of communication on all questions of blood. The early numbers of this work are very rich in pedigrees of times then long past. Old gentlemen contributed much from their recollection, private stud-books of past generations as well as the then present were hunted up, and the piles of old newspapers were examined, and all contributed to this one receptacle. Many of these pedigrees were very badly expressed, and some of them most ingeniously arranged to cover defects; and it is to be greatly regretted that Mr. Skinner did not give more attention to this department of his magazine, as it appears to have been his custom to publish whatever was sent him in the shape of a pedigree, and just as it was sent. Sets of this publication are now exceedingly rare and valuable. I have taken the first ten volumes of this work, coming down to the close of the year 1839, and compiled all that is known or there stated of the blood of every named animal.

This work has been done page by page, and paragraph by paragraph. There are some animals, doubtless, named in the course of the narrative in which no attempt is made to give their blood, that do not here appear, but these instances are exceedingly rare. My purpose and effort has been to make clean and thorough work of these ten volumes, and, if a pedigree is not found in this book, you need not look for it in the Turf Register prior to 1840.

In 1833, Patrick Nisbett Edgar, Esq., of N. C., published a collection of pedigrees, entitled "The American Race-Turf Register, Sportsman's Herald, and General Stud-Book," and the wordiness of the title is a very fair indication of the character and style of the contents.

This work cost Mr. Edgar years of toil, for which he was never compensated. Aside from its wonderful verbosity, the work is remarkable for two features—the great number of animals it contains, with astonishingly long pedigrees, that no person has heard of before or since, and the great number of distinguished animals, thoroughly interwoven in our turf history, which it does not contain. Notwithstanding these glaring faults, which appear to have originated in prejudices and fancies, it was a great undertaking, and contains much information nowhere else obtainable; but the book itself never met with the favor and confidence of the public. In addition to the pedigrees gleaned from the first ten volumes of the Turf Register, this compilation embraces every animal in Mr. Edgar's book; and in every instance where the pedigree is taken from that book, Mr. Edgar's name is appended to it. This course I have chosen as due to Mr. Edgar, that whatever of merit or absurdity attaches to a pedigree may be placed where it belongs.

Where Mr. Edgar has differed from the Turf Register, my rule has been to follow the latter, as all pedigrees published therein were subjected to the criticisms and corrections of many able pens in those days, and if they passed the ordeal unscathed they might be taken as authenticated. This same fact would apply with equal force to any conpilation of pedigrees that might be undertaken of the present generation of horses. If we had any one periodical that circulated among all horsemen, the chances for impositions and errors would be greatly reduced, if the pedigrees were first subjected to the public examination through its columns. Thus we have in this volume all that has been published on the pedigrees of American and imported horses up to the year 1840, except what may be contained in the "Spirit of the Times" previous to that year.

THE FORM OF STATING A PEDIGREE.

Being fully aware that at this point I am met with the prejudices of very many of our most intelligent breeders, especially those who have been in the habit of referring to the British Stud-Book, it is but justice to me that you examine carefully the reasons for this apparent innovation. My preference has been and still is for the English method of giving the mares and their produce under them. But, after laboring some months to carry out that system, I found it extremely unsatisfactory, if not impracticable.

You must remember that in this volume, good and bad, there are twenty Diomeds, ten Fearnoughts, sixteen Florizels, thirteen Januses, nineteen Eclipses, and Sir Archys, Sir Charleses, Rattlers, Nonpareils, Othellos, Selims, &c., in great numbers. And it so happens that in most of these cases the animals bearing the duplicate names are the sons of some famous horse, and are consequently contemporaneous. These are facts in horse nomenclature that the Englishman never dreamed of; and, abominable and perplexing as they are, they have to be met. Suppose, in the case of a Medley mare, you find one of her foals got by Diomed, you find it is not imported Diomed, but a son of his; hence you say, "by Diomed, son of imp. Diomed." But there are a dozen others that this description will apply to, hence you add "Smith's;" but the horse has been owned by Jones, and is sometimes called "Jones's Diomed" or "Moore's Diomed." Here you have taken up two or three lines across the page in identifying the horse, and broken up and confused your list of produce. Now, apply this difficulty of identification and description to the system of numbers as used in this volume, and you will say "by Diomed, 711," which definitely fixes the horse without the possibility of mistake. This, then, is the first argument in favor of my system—the brevity and certainty of identification.

The second argument is, that while it is definite and certain so far as the animal in question is concerned, it does not close the door against others from the same dam that may not have been found. All familiar with the English system, and with the importations made from that country, know that if an animal in question is not found in the list of produce of a given mare, it is prima facie evidence of an attempt at fraud; and no difference how clearly it may be demonstrated that the book was wrong, a doubt at least will attach to the animal and offspring in the minds of many forever. In such a country as England, not embracing a continent, where breeding studs are carried on by the intelligent and wealthy, and transmitted from father to son, and where the compilation and correction of pedigrees have been in competent hands for nearly eighty years, we would expect fullness and accuracy. But in this country, after a lapse of a hundred years of breeding and racing, without any successful attempt at even a partial compilation, entire fullness and accuracy cannot be reasonably expected. Hence the objection to any system that by its nature assumes the impossibility of fullness and accuracy.

To illustrate this point, take for example the famous old brood mare Bet Bounce. John S. Skinner, Esq., the founder and very successful editor of the American Turf Register, proposed at one time to compile an American stud-book, and published in 1835 the pedigree and produce of Bet Bounce, as follows, viz.:

Bet Bounce. Foaled —; bred by —; was got by imported

Sir Harry ; — imp. Medley ; — Mark Anthony ; — Jolly Roger ; — imp. Jenny Cameron.

1813, b. f. Coquette, by Sir Archy.
1820, br. c. Arab, "
1824, b. c. Tariff, "
1826, b. c. Brilliant, "
1828, b. f. Eliza Reily, "

The above has been frequently published since as the complete list of her produce ; and an authority as late as March, 1866, adds : Gen. Brooke and Barsheba by Sir Archy, but leaves out Tariff. Now, let either of these lists be published in an authoritative book form, claiming to be correct, and, from our habit of depending upon the accuracy of the British Stud-Book, we will resist any subsequent attempt to add to that list.

For the purpose of illustrating this point further, and of showing that this is not a hypothetical case, but that the system would work an evil even in this instance, I will give the pedigree of the mare and her produce as they stand in this volume :—

BET BOUNCE, br.,

Foaled 1805 ; got by imp. Sir Harry, 2291 ; dam Atalanta, by imp. Medley, 1520 ; g. d. Pink, by Mark Anthony, 1459 ; — by imp. Jolly Roger, 1274 ; imp. Jenny Cameron, which see.

Owned by William E. Broadnax, of Va.

1813, b. f.....Coquette..... .. Sir Archy, 2278.
181–,.....Lady Hambleton.....Sir Arthur, 2283.
——,..... .....Pirate ..... " "
1820, br. c.....Arab.....Sir Archy, 2278.

182–, f.....Barsheba..... ....Sir Archy, 2278.
1824, b. c.....Tariff..... " "
1825, b. f..... ...Sally Melville.....Virginian, 2672.
1826, b. c.....Brilliant.....Sir Archy, 2278.
1827, b. f..... ....Eliza Reily..... " "
1828, br. c.....Gen. Brooke..... " "

It will be thus observed that the list has grown from five to ten, and the presumption to my mind is that there were still more. Of the authenticity of the above list there can be no doubt, except it be Pirate, and Mr. Edgar is responsible for him, giving Mr. Broadnax as his breeder.

The third argument in favor of this system and against the English is, that in hundreds of instances the latter would require the insertion of the pedigree of a nameless mare for the sake of a place to insert a single foal with or without a name, while the former will avoid any thing so stupid, by inserting the named animal itself in its proper alphabetical place.

The fourth and last argument that will be here adduced is, that the book is its own index, which every one will admit is a very great convenience, and indeed a necessity almost in a compilation of American pedigrees, with so many animals bearing the same name.

In the English method, the economy of space is of small moment; but the great point to be admired is, that you can see at a glance the character of the whole family. Of this excellent feature I have availed myself as far as practicable, by arranging their produce, so far as known and named, under many of the most distinguished brood mares, as in the case of Bet Bounce above; but each one of these foals will appear in its place alphabetically, without regard to its appearance in another place in a list of produce ; the only object being to show the character of families in as many instances as possible. In the second volume, this feature can be carried to a much greater extent. Having given the pedigree of a mare, I will now give one of a horse, which will fully represent the system carried out.

1753. OSCAR, b., (Tennessee.)

Foaled 1814 ; got by Wonder, 2775 ; dam Rosey Clack, by imp. Sattram, 2154, which see.

Bred by Rev. Hubbard Sanders, of Tenn. ; died 1825.

This horse was often known as Tenn. Oscar, to distinguish him from others of the same name ; hence the name in parentheses.

There were six or seven Wonders covering at the time this horse was got ; but by turning to 2775, you will find this Wonder was by imp. Diomed, 709, out of Mary Gray by Tippoo Saib, 2521. He was sometimes called Little Wonder and sometimes Wilkes's Wonder ; but the simple number 2775 fixes the identity without further explanation or doubt.

THE BOOK COMPLETE IN ITSELF.

It is meant by this announcement that you can trace every animal named through every branch and division of its pedigree to the limit or fountain-head, without reference to any other book. The exceptions to this statement are very few, perhaps not amounting to a dozen, and they come in this wise. For example: there was a Maryland horse, called Tamerlane, whose pedigree I have not been able to find; but, from the quality of the mares bred to him, and the character of their owners, I have no doubt he was thoroughbred. A few cases of his cross occur, as well as two or three others in the same category, and as a matter of course these animals cannot be extended. In the pedigrees of imported animals, great care has been taken to give them correctly from the British Stud-Book. The very shallow device of adding "&c., &c." to short and doubtful pedigrees has been practiced so long, and sometimes by the undesigning, that the character itself, innocent though it be, has become a stench with honest men as applied to pedigrees, and it is believed it will not be found from beginning to end of this volume.

AN EVIL AND THE CORRECTION.

Much of the confusion that has pervaded American pedigrees has arisen from the habit of writing from memory. In every generation and district there have been some men who were looked upon as oracles on the blood of all the horses in a large extent of country, and these men were called upon to give pedigrees, oftentimes, which they did entirely from memory. They were generally skilled in local horse history, and were blessed with excellent retentive powers, but they were very apt to omit or add or change one or more crosses, and these errors were propagated. Hence the great number of differences, often of minor importance, but still differences that should have been avoided. It is believed this system of adding a number to every horse, which becomes a part of his designation, will effectually break up this evil, and cause every man to go straight to the record. It was a very short time after the publication of the British Short-horn Herd-Book till a pedigree, in order to go at all, had to contain the full designation of every male animal named therein—not only the name, but the number also. The same was the fact in this country ; and it will be but a short time till the numbers will be deemed indispensable in horse pedigrees, and the more we use the system the more we will prize it.

TROTTING SUPPLEMENT.

If the "confusion" has been great among the thoroughbreds, it is "worse confounded" among the trotters. The practice manifested itself early, and it has not yet disappeared, of waiting till a horse should distinguish himself on the trotting turf, and then hunting up a pedigree for him. Some of the more pretentious memoirs that have been written of celebrated trotters were certainly not poetry, but they might properly be classed with works of the imagination, so far as blood is concerned. But while many of these pedigrees are somewhat problematical—to use no stronger term—many of them, especially those of later day, are entirely reliable ; and, in order that every man may be able to make his own deductions from the blood and performances of the many celebrities, they are all here given, and many others, not specially distinguished for speed, but because they are more or less intimately connected with the blood of our famous trotters. It is to be regretted that, in our day, we have so few trotting races over a mile, as it is "staying the distance" that most clearly demonstrates the value of blood. This question of the value of blood in the trotting horse has been discussed over and over again for the last thirty years, oftentimes without any special reference to those rules of courtesy that should be observed, and generally with a disposition to beat rather than arrive at the truth. There are one or two thoughts, or, I should rather say, facts, that lie at the foundation of this question, and to which the disputants on both sides must give their assent. The experience of generations has proved that the thoroughbred horse will endure more than any other, and, as trotting is a test of endurance, in that particular the blood horse has the advantage. Then, two horses of equal speed will depend necessarily on endurance to win, and, if blood has the endurance, the question of superiority is settled. If the thoroughbred horse, with the proper trotting action, is not preferable to breed from, then the experience of ages in breeding racers, and the law which governs in breeding all other domestic animals, is at fault in breeding trotters. But it is not my intention or province here to discuss this question, but to give the blood, as far as known, and performances of all trotting horses. And in this case I have discriminated in favor of horses and mares as against geldings, for the reason the latter only illustrate the value of a given strain of blood, without the power to transmit it. I have therefore admitted all horses and mares that have gone in 2:40 and under, while I have required 2:35 of geldings. It is believed this compilation of trotting horses, embracing over seven hundred animals, is very nearly perfect, but it is not claimed to be entirely so.

I have met the same annoyance in this as in the thoroughbred department, growing out of the duplication of names; and in some instances it is intensified. I cannot tell how many Patchens there are, but I know I have not gotten all of them, as I would have had if they had been given an honest name of their own. This whole theory of claiming names in the sporting papers is a humbug, as heretofore practiced; for, in the very number in which the name is claimed and given, perhaps another animal bearing the same name is recorded in a race. Now, until editors will protect a name in the racing calendars, and every other place, it is but little use to claim it. Just as soon as editors will invariably draw their pen through every illegitimate name that appears in race reports, the evil will be measurably overcome; and I will here give gentlemen timely notice that, if spared to prepare another volume, I will then enforce the rule which I here suggest to others. The suffixes of "Young," "Jr.," &c., as well as all initials and titles, such as "Capt.," "Col.," "Gen.," &c., are extremely objectionable, for the horse is often reported without these suffixes or prefixes, and hence confusion. Names should consist of a single word, and that word not inconveniently long. No difference what language it comes from, so that it is new and pronounceable.

Aside from performance, there has been no rule of admission to a place among the trotters. But among the young and untried I have required either trotting or running blood on both sides; and from among the names claimed in the sporting press I have selected pretty liberally from what appeared to be the best.

It is proper to say that, in exploring the trotting field, I meet with many animals called thoroughbred that cannot be so recognized. They are new acquaintances, and, if really thoroughbred, we would probably have met them before in more aristocratic company. It is to be regretted exceedingly that, so far as the blood of this trotting supplement is concerned, there is so much that is wanting, and so much that is uncertain and contradictory; but, with the materials at hand, you have my best endeavors.

AMERICAN ECLIPSE.

By Duroc, Son of Sir Archy, Dam Miller's Damsel by Messenger

Union Course L. I. May 27. 1823 aged Sir Henry — Four Mile Heats — Time, 7.37½. 7.49. 8.21.

2674; g. d. Nancy Air, by imp. Bedford, 192. [See Nancy Air.]

Bred by James B. Richardson, S. C. Edgar.

230. BERTRAND, b.,

Foaled 1821; got by Sir Archy, 2278; dam Eliza, by imp. Bedford, 192; g. d. imp. Mambrina, by Mambrino. [See Mambrina.]

This was, perhaps, Sir Archy's best son—unequaled on the turf, and in the stud he had no rival. His cross is sought in all western pedigrees, and he did more to improve the stock in Kentucky and Tennessee than any horse before or since. He died in 1838, at the age of seventeen years; and not long before his death his owner was offered and refused fifteen thousand dollars for one half interest in him.

231. BERTRAND (Jr.),

Foaled 182–; got by Bertrand, 230; dam Transport, by Virginius, 2674. [See Transport.]

The same as Bertram, 229. Was highly distinguished.

785. DUNGANNON, imp., b.,

Foaled 1793; got by Dungannon; dam by Conductor; g. d. Flirt, by Squirrel; Helen, by Blank; — by Crab; Sister to Partner, by Jigg.

The above pedigree has been pronounced incorrect by Mr. Herbert, but the compiler has never found Col. Tayloe at fault. Flirt produced three fillies to Conductor, and neither they nor any of their produce are inserted in Weatherby's Stud-Book. It is fair to presume Dungannon was the colt of one of these mares.

Imported by Col. Tayloe, 1799.

786. DUNGANNON, gr.,

Bred by Seth Peebles, Northampton Co., N. C.

803. ECLIPSE, imp., b.,

Foaled 17—; got by Bright's Partner; dam by Bloody Buttocks; g. d. by Greyhound; — by Makeless; — by Brimmer; — by Place's White Turk; — by Old Dodsworth.

Mr. Edgar says this horse was imported by Col. Harris, and was called "Harris's Eclipse." But the best evidence goes to show that the true "Harris's Eclipse" is the horse next below. This horse is not found in the British Stud-Book, and, all things considered, is probably a myth.

804. ECLIPSE, b. (Harris's),

Foaled about 1768; got by imp. Fearnought, 888; dam got in England by Shakespeare; g. d. imp. Cassandra, by Whitenose; — by Devonshire Blacklegs; — by Holderness Turk; — by Snake; — by Diamond.

Imported into Penn. Died the property of C. W. Van Rantz, of New York, Jan. 28th, 1808.

Besides being the progenitor of many first-rate race-horses, he was remarkable for the trotting and staying qualities of his half-bred descendants; and now, half a century after his death, these qualities are still perpetuated and attributed to him. For all purposes he was certainly one of the best horses ever imported.

1563. MESSENGER (Ogden's),

Imported into New York by Mr. Delancy. Left some excellent stock; and, on account of his great value in the stud, he was taken back to England.

2753. WILDAIR (Sims's),

Foaled 1764–5; got by imp. Wildair, 2752; dam by Ariel, 113; g. d. by imp. Othello, 1765; out of an imported mare, by a son of old Cade.

Bred by Col. Sims, of Md. Although this was a good horse, and stood at $300 and $10 to the groom, he must not be confounded with the following animal of the same name.

2754. WILDAIR (Symmes's),

Foaled 1770; got by imp. Fearnought, 888; dam by imp. Jolly Roger, 1274; g. d. imp. Kitty Fisher, which see.

Bred by Mr. Randolph. Afterward the property of Col. Symmes, of Hanover Co., Va.

This was the best son of his illustrious sire, and left a very numerous and most valuable progeny.

From the similarity in the pronunciation of the names of the owners of this and the preceding horse, much confusion has arisen in pedigrees.

2755. WILDAIR, b. (Jones's),

Foaled 1793; got by Wildair, 2754; dam by imp. Flimnap, 931; g. d. by Wildair, 2754; — by imp. Fearnought, 888; — by Mark Anthony, 1459; — by imp. Jolly Roger, 1274; imp. Mary Gray.

AUBURN HORSE, ch. g.,

Foaled 1858; got by Champion, Jr.; dam claimed to be of Bellfounder and also of Hambletonian stock, but really unknown.
Bred by Philip Smeltzer, Lodi, N. Y.; owned by Robert Bonner, N. Y., and known to be wonderfully fast.

AWFUL, b. g.,

Foaled about 1829; got by American Boy, 73; dam by imp. Expedition, 863; g. d. said to be thoroughbred.
The appearance of this horse did not contradict the general opinion that he was thoroughbred. It has been claimed by some that he was got by Black Bashaw; but as he appeared on the trotting turf in 1836, and Black Bashaw was not foaled till 1838, the claim is a fallacy.

BABY BELLE, b. m.,

Foaled 18—; got by Eureka.
Trotted at Philadelphia, 1864, in harness, 2.35–2.35–2.36½.

BASHAW (YOUNG),

BELLFOUNDER, imp., b. h.,

Foaled about 1817. Imported by Mr. James Boot, of Boston, in 1823. The attempts to give the blood of this horse have not been successful. He was doubtless part bred, but he was imported on account of his great trotting performances rather than his blood. In England, it is said, he trotted seventeen and a half miles inside the hour. He stood several years on Long Island, and Orange County, and left a race of good-going, stylish carriage horses, almost uniformly bays.

BELLFOUNDER, b. h. (Kissam's),

Foaled 1830; got by imp. Bellfounder.

When five years old, he trotted on the Harlem Course, in harness, in 2.45.

BLACK HAWK, bl. h.,

Foaled 1833; got by Sherman Morgan; dam raised in New Brunswick, and was represented as a half-bred English mare.

Bred by Wingate Twombly, of Greenland, N. H. Sold to Benj. Thurston, of Lowell, Mass., 1837, and to David Hill, of Bridport, Vt., in 1844, in whose possession he acquired great fame, and died. This horse got more high priced colts than any horse of his day. In many cases, expectations were not realized, but he had remarkable power in propagating his own characteristics.

His stock were uniformly stylish and trappy drivers, many of them fast, and some of them among the fastest. His best time was 2.42. In this compilation, the name of his State (Vermont) is generally used in connection with his name, to distinguish him from others of the same name.

Foaled 1793; got by True Britton (said to be a son of imp. Traveller, out of a mare imported by Col. Delancey); dam supposed to have been of the Wildair breed, and by others supposed to have been by Lindsey Arabian; of the two, the latter supposition is the more probable; but all attempts to give a satisfactory account of the origin of this wonderful horse have been abortive, although it might be said volumes have been written on the subject. He, doubtless, possessed a large share of good blood, as his progeny so uniformly partook of certain fixed characteristics which were his own. This was the founder of that particular race which for so many years were sought for at high prices from all parts of the country, and which made their breeders rich.
